Author and Reviewer Guide

The Christian Librarian
The Journal of the Association for Christian Librarians

Description

The Christian Librarian®, the Journal of the Association of Christian Librarians, is owned by the Association of Christian Librarians, Inc. The Christian Librarian serves to publish articles, provide a membership forum, and encourage writing. Issues include the Christian interpretation of librarianship, theory and practice of library science, bibliographic essays, reviews, and human-interest articles relating to books and libraries.

Scope of Publication

Topics of interest center around academic libraries and librarianship and include:

- Explorations of the future of libraries.
- Policy and procedural development for library services.
- Issues regarding Open Access (OA).
- Digital collections.
- Intellectual property.
- Resources, skills, and training in academic libraries.
- Reports of original research.
- Issues regarding libraries in higher education.

Submissions

The Christian Librarian welcomes submissions of original, unpublished work that are not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere and serve the mission and scope of the journal.

Authors are requested to submit research articles through the online submission portal at https://digitalcommons.georgefox.edu/tcl/. No submission fee is required.

Submission of a manuscript implies that the work described has not been published previously (except in the form of an abstract or as part of a published lecture or academic thesis or as an electronic preprint) and that its publication is approved by all authors, and that, if accepted, it will not be published elsewhere without the written consent of the copyright holder. Authors are responsible for the accuracy of the statements and statistics included in a submission.

Authors may submit their manuscript files in Microsoft Word (as .doc or .docx) or RTF format.

Submissions should be written in American English and conform to the standards of The Chicago Manual of Style, 17th edition. Submissions should have citations in footnotes and be supplemented with a bibliography. Spelling will follow Merriam-Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary, 11th edition. Authors who feel their manuscript may benefit from professional editing are encouraged to use language-editing and copyediting services. Obtaining this service is the responsibility of the author and should be done before initial submission.

Types of Articles

Editorial
The editors’ meditations on a particular topic or the introduction to an issue of the journal.

Refereed Article
Refereed submissions should be original research findings, case studies and/or evaluations of library-related services or programs, and/or other extended reflections on issues relevant to the aim and scope of the journal.

Refereed submissions should be between 4,000 and 8,000 words.

Refereed submissions will go through a double-blind review process.

Essays
Essay submissions cover issues or topics relevant to the scope of the journal but are not suitable as a refereed article.

Essay submissions should be between 2,500 and 5,000 words.

Review
Book or resource reviews should be relevant to the scope of the journal and should include the subject and scope of the work and a statement of the author’s thesis. Reviews should reveal the nature of treatment: reference, introductory, scholarly, textbook, etc., and a synopsis of the content. They should evaluate the work and identify the author if they are not well known. Reviews should address how well the resource achieves its purpose. How does it compare with others of its kind? What does it contribute to its field? Is it clear, thorough, and well-documented?

Book review submissions should be no more than 1,500 words.

Bibliographic Essays
Bibliographic essays are book or resource reviews that, typically, cover more than one book or resource and critically analyze their relationship to each other. Often these are organized around several books or resources that address a particular topic or theme. Bibliographic essays should address themes or topics relevant to the aim and scope of the journal.

Bibliographic essay submissions should be no more than 3,000 words.

Manuscript Preparation
